Job Hunting Tips

Documents You Should Obtain

Certificates of Rehabilitation: Having a Certificate of Rehabilitation can help you when you apply for a job or a license. For more information, contact the NYS Division of Parole at (518)-473-5424. If you are currently on parole, you should contact your parole officer directly.

Record of Arrest and Prosecution (RAP) Sheets: The majority of RAP sheets contain errors, which could compromise your ability to get a job. To obtain a copy of your RAP sheet, call D.C.J.S. at (518)-485-7675.

Other Helpful Documents to Have for a Job Search

- Letters of Reference (from counselors, teachers, previous employers, clergy, etc.)
- Proof of Education (such as high school diploma, GED certificate, apprenticeship certification, and/or transcript of college courses)
- A resume or summary of your employment history

- Any certificates or awards for vocational training or special programs

NYS Department of Labor One-Stop Centers

Your local One-Stop Career Center can provide you with numerous free resources for finding a job, including: job counseling, career planning assistance, job search databases, resume workshops, job fairs, training opportunities, and the use of computers, printers and fax machines. Local One-Stop office listings can be found in this resource guide listed under “Jobs.”

Know Your Rights in New York State

Excerpted from The Prime Objective: A Guide to Preparing the Job Seeking Ex-Offender, NYS Dept of Labor, 2007)

- Employers in New York State can ask about all convictions, misdemeanors and felonies, but not about arrests.
- Employers who cannot get your RAP Sheet are allowed to ask job applicants to submit disposition slips as part of the application process.
- If the employer uses a consumer reporting agency to conduct a background check, under federal law, you are entitled to a copy of the report from the consumer reporting agency and a reasonable amount of time to review the report before the employer denies your employment if it is related to a conviction.
- Federal law bans employers from using polygraph (lie detector) tests as a basis for employment. They can give you a polygraph test once you are on the job if a specific incident arises. Even then, employees must receive written notice of the incident and of the date, time and location of the polygraph test 48 hours prior to being tested.
- Employers in New York State are not allowed to discriminate against ex-offenders, unless your felony and / or misdemeanor conviction is related to the employment or license you are seeking. If you feel that you have been discriminated against solely on the basis of being an ex-offender, you have the right to ask the employer for a letter stating why you were denied employment. Under N.Y.S. Corrections law, the employer has 30 days to give you this letter. N.Y.S. Division of Human Rights would enforce this law.

General Resources

The following resources offer more detailed information about your legal rights and resources to help you with a successful reentry. To access the websites, you can use a free public computer at your local library.

The Prime Objective: A Guide to Preparing the Job Seeking Ex-Offender

<https://labor.ny.gov/formsdocs/pubs/pdfs/es302.pdf>

This guide contains detailed information and advice to help ex-offenders in New York State get hired. It contains resources for all stages of a job hunt, including information about legal rights, incentive programs for ex-offenders and sample resumes and cover letters. You can get a free copy from the website listed above, or by contacting your local Department of Labor One-Stop Center - locations are listed in this guide under “Jobs.” (Published by the NYS Dept of Labor)

The People’s Guide to Consequences of Criminal Proceedings

www.reentry.net/ny/help/

This manual provides detailed information and advice about the legal barriers that ex-offenders face in New York State. You can download a free copy from the website listed above. The guide is for informational purposes only and is not a substitute for legal advice. (Published by the Bronx Defenders)

Law Help NY
